10:26	Review Group Norms	Lauren Gallicchio	Shared Agreements of Work The group reviewed the shared agreements of work and agreed these were still appropriate.
10:30	Progress Updates	Lauren Gallicchio Beth Ratway	Current Status Lauren provided an update on the work that occurred since the joint subcommittee and the Review and Development Committee (RDC) met in May. Following the meetings in May edits were made to the draft standards document to prepare it for public comment. It did not go out for public comment on June 1. Rather KDE determined it was necessary to obtain additional feedback prior to opening them up for public comment. During the first week of June KDE conducted elementary, middle and high school focus groups. Currently there is a virtual focus group being conducted to gain additional feedback. KDE also reached out to early childhood people to seek feedback. All of the feedback is available for the subcommittee to review in the Google. This will be continually updated as feedback is received. The goal is to still have the first reading of the standards by the Kentucky Board of Education in October.

			The subcommittee will meet again on the 21st and 22nd to do additional work. It is anticipated they will be available for public comment sometime in July. No exact date has been determined at this time. They will be available for public comment for 30 days. After the survey closes ARRC will review the feedback, develop the report and return it to KDE. Once this occurs the AP and RDC will meet to make adjustments according to the public feedback.
10:35	Focus Group Summary	Beth Rataway	Beth shared with the group a summary of the feedback from the three focus groups (elementary, middle and high school) Overall the feedback was relative to grain size. She shared the specific criteria for high quality standards around which the feedback was sought. Coherence – Liked the consistency between disciplines. Thought there was good breadth. Manageability/Usability –It was clear about expectations and not too broad. The concerns were that there was overloading and was too high level for K-3. Suggested there should be guidance for resources, an introduction document or appendix that gives guidance to context for each grade level and curriculum planning. Suggested there could be guidance on the changes. Flow/progression – Stated good job in demonstrating flow and progression. Did notice that there was a jump from grade 3 to 4 – broad to specific. Disciplinary Balance – Liked that standards encompass the four disciplines. Concerned that in elementary there wasn't as much geography or economics as should be. Rigor – High school commented unsure the rigor is deep enough/expectation is high enough. Focus – It is developmentally appropriate. Skills appear to be inferred. High School disciplines are not necessarily practices. Elementary lacks consistency, some standards are too low level while others are too high level. Suggested to make sure terms are described in a glossary and to provide professional learning as standards are implemented. Specificity – Elementary is too broad in their basic ideas and too specific in their order and understanding the details. The standards jump between elementary, middle and high school. Did like the flexibility teachers have to tailor their instruction. Clarity/Accessibility – Everyone liked this area. Measurability – Elementary – Uncertain how to measure “understand.” High School noticed that there's no synthesis. Provided the feedback when there is analysis students also must be something that lets students pull information back together. Analysis – It occurs across the disciplines. Architecture – There was no clear consensus.
11:05	508 Compliance & Architecture	Lauren Gallicchio	Lauren shared the 508 Compliance requirements for the architecture of the Standards. Provided optional versions

			of the architectures to review. The group reviewed the versions, considered the feedback from the focus groups and the 508 compliance requirements to make final decisions on the architecture to use to house the Social Studies Standards.

9:03	Review Group Norms	Lauren Gallicchio	Shared Agreements of Work Lauren shared with the group the shared agreements of work. She reminded the group it is expected that everyone will have different ideas and opinions. All perspectives are invited. Especially in a group of Social Studies teachers there can be the demonstration of democratic discourse. All opinions are welcome and highly valued. Changes or additions were sought for the shared agreements for work. None were made.
9:05	Agenda Review	Lauren Gallicchio	Tasks for the Day The group broke into smaller groups to tackle the following areas of review and revision of the draft standards. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Vertical and horizontal alignment of the strands • Rigor and appropriate verbs • Coherence of the standards • Glossary
11:20	Morning Review		Group Update Each of the groups shared an update on their work from the morning. A common thread throughout each of the groups was a challenge with how to best address a “world view” in third grade. The group discussed comments from the feedback and they were able to be more intentional with specific events

			such as individual wars throughout history to make revisions. Specific changes to verbs were made in sections of Geography (had been a lot of identify) The group found where there were duplicative standards. It was noted that if this was within the same grade this needed to be noted so it could be changed. There cannot be duplicative standards at different grades as students must master the standard at a grade level, not repeat it. The Economics group reviewed the verbs and looked at the both vertical and horizontal alignment of the standards. Additional feedback will be sought to determine if some of the standards should be moved or revised. The group reviewed inquiry within each grade level and made some changes in verbs. They made sure that the inquiry standard did not pigeon hole a teacher into specific discipline when completing it. It was noted that throughout the document several different types of questions were included. These need to be defined and there must be common language used throughout the document. The group also worked on the communicating conclusions area.
